

ROOSEVELT AS A MINISTER

The President Spoke, Sunday, to a Vast Audience, on Honesty, Service to God and State.

VERY ESSENTIAL

Is the Foundation of Liberty—People Must Assume More Responsibility.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Intelligent service to God and the state was the subject of an address by President Roosevelt to the 7,000 persons who attended the public open air missionary service at St. Albans.

When Bishop Satterlee of Washington diocese introduced President Roosevelt he referred to the chief executive as "his excellency." President Roosevelt turned to Gen. J. W. Wilson, who sat beside him, and remarked, in a tone audible to the bishops who sat around him: "I do not like that. I wish he would not say that." Bishop Satterlee, a moment later, in again referring to Mr. Roosevelt, said: "The president of the United States." That is right," said the president. "I like that."

Speaks for Britain. At the close of the president's address the Most Rev. Enos Nuttall, archbishop of the West Indies, asked permission to say a word on behalf of the British people. He told of the "reverence and respect" which all Englishmen feel for the president of the United States and for Theodore Roosevelt, "the man and the Christian." He declared that England welcomed the expansion of the United States into a world power, and that if President Roosevelt should visit England he would receive the greatest welcome ever extended a foreign visitor.

Christian Citizens. The president spoke in part as follows: "In what I am about to say to you I wish to dwell upon certain thoughts suggested by three different quotations. In the first place, 'Thou shalt serve the Lord with all thy heart, with all thy soul, and with all thy mind'; the next, 'Be ye therefore wise as serpents and harmless as doves'; and finally that 'We being ready, both in body and soul may therefore accomplish these things which thou commandest.'"

"To an audience such as this I do not have to say anything as to serving the cause of decency with heart and with soul. I want to dwell, however, upon the fact that we have the right to claim from you not merely that you shall have heart in your work, not merely that you shall put your souls into it, but that you shall give the best that your minds have got to it also."

Saving the State. "I want to call your attention to something that is especially my business for the time being and that is your business all the time, or else you are unfit to be citizens of this republic. In the seventh hymn which we sung, in the last line, you all joined in singing 'God save the state.' Do you intend merely to sing that, or try to do it? If you intend merely to sing it, your part in doing it will be but small. The state will be saved if the Lord puts it into the heart of the average man so to shape his life that the state shall be worth saving, and only on those terms."

Honesty Comes First. "Exactly as in time of war, although you needed in each fighting man far more than courage, yet all else counts for nothing if there is not that courage upon which to base it. So in our civil life, although we need that the average man, in private life, that the average public servant shall have far more than honesty, yet all other qualities go for nothing or for worse than nothing unless honesty underlies them—not only the honesty that keeps its skirts technically clear, but the honesty that is such according to the spirit as well as the letter of the law. "And let us not flatter ourselves, we who live in countries where the people rule, that it is possible ultimately for the people to cast upon any but themselves the responsibilities for the shape the government and the social and political life of the community assume."

RED-HAIRED STATESMAN RIVALS JERRY SIMPSON

Representative From the District of the Sockless Congressman Wins on Color of His Locks.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Representative Victor Murdock, the newly elected member of Congress from "Sockless" Jerry Simpson's district in Kansas, is attracting much attention here.

Mr. Simpson is supposed to have gained many votes on the sockless issue, but Mr. Murdock made his campaign chiefly on the red-hair issue.

Mr. Murdock's hair is very red. Prior to the holding of the district convention that nominated him for Congress to succeed Mr. Long, there was a big field of candidates, Murdock and one other having red hair. The other red-haired candidate entered into an alliance with Murdock by which it was agreed that, after the pre-convention campaign had progressed long enough to determine which red-haired man was the more popular, the losing candidate before the public should withdraw in favor of the other.

Murdock won. He told the people of Kansas from the stump that the red-haired men were a considerable part of the population, and that they should be represented in Congress. He was nominated and elected.

London, Oct. 26.—Speaking at Kilmarnock today, John Redmond, the Irish leader, declared the time had arrived to start a campaign against emigration. DOWIE DENIES SENDING MILLIONS TO AUSTRALIA

Leader of Restoration Host Says His Wife Did Not Take Iron Box With Securities.

New York, Oct. 26.—It was a new Dowie—chastened, reserved, apologetic—who addressed the meeting of the Zion restoration host in Madison Square garden Sunday afternoon. It was evident that Dowie as a mere dispenser of the Gospel is unattractive to a New York audience. The garden was only half filled, and this was sad by commented on by the apostle. When at the close of the procession about 1,600 visitors left the hall Dowie arose. He did not display anger, but in a tone of sadness said: "I have no wish to detain a single person who does not wish to remain but I shall esteem it a favor if you kindly will retain your seats."

Even in his discourse Dowie seemed careful not to give offense. At night hundreds of seats were unoccupied. An admission made by "Eljah" from the stage was that his early morning "sacrifice of praise and prayer" meetings have not been a success. "Our early morning prayer meeting," began Dowie, "was held at 6:30 o'clock in the hope it might help people who had to go to business early, but it was found exceedingly inconvenient for the host, so I've determined that the host shall have breakfast at 6:30 o'clock, while the meetings will be held at 8:30."

Dowie denied the report that his wife had taken $7,500,000 in bonds and securities in an iron box to Australia. He said she had no iron box with her. One of the overseers explained further that the aggregate wealth of Zion City amounted to only $23,000,000, and that Dowie laid claim to only 5 per cent of it.

FATHER KILLS TWO CHILDREN

Shoots the Little Ones Because His Wife Refuses To Believe Him.

GAVE HIMSELF UP

After Killing His Two Sons He Surrenders Himself to the Officers of the Law.

Marion, Ind., Oct. 26.—Jesse McClure, living near this city, murdered his two little boys, aged 5 and 7. He then fled to this city to escape a mob that quickly formed to lynch him. A deputy sheriff took him to Indianapolis for safety.

McClure lived near Frankton, and separated from his wife a year ago, she returning with her children to her father's home. McClure induced the children to take a ride with them. He drove a mile up the road and then shot them both.

Resolves on Revenge. News of the atrocious crime spread like wildfire, and in every surrounding town armed men started in pursuit. McClure drove with all speed to Marion, where he surrendered himself to the sheriff.

To the jail turnkey McClure admitted the murder of his two children, and said he had killed them because his wife had left him and refused to see him. He said: "When she refused to see me I decided to be revenged, and drove down the road to a clump of small trees. My two children were asleep in the buggy. When I stopped the jolt awoke my little boy, Dee. He looked up to me and said: 'Papa, what are you going to do? Slays Innocents.'"

"I put my hand over his eyes and took my gun from my pocket and shot him in the forehead, killing him instantly. The shot awoke little Homer, and I took him by the shoulder and fired a shot into his forehead. They both fell to the bottom of the buggy. I drove the horse to the side of the road and lifted both bodies out and laid them on the withered grass."

"The neighbors will lynch me when they find out what I have done. I do not care what you do with me. I am ready to die and expect to hang for this crime. All that I ask is to see my dear little ones buried."

These rats are plentiful in Monterey and in parts of Spring Brook, but it is not often that they are seen on the main streets of the town.

BRISK TRADE IN OLD PACKINGS

JANESVILLE TOBACCO IDEALERS MAKE SOME LARGE SALES.

VERNON CO. OUTSTRIPS ROCK

In Acreage Devoted to Leaf Culture—Several Purchases of New Crop at Windsor

Aside from a few scattering sales, the movement of the new leaf tobacco crop is attracting little or no attention. There is no organized effort on the part of large operators to renew buying and most of the riding being done is in search of old stock in the grower's hands.

Sales in Old Leaf. A deal for 2,500 cases of 1932, including the packings of Sanford Soverhill, of this city, McIntosh Bros., and Owen & Pepper, has been made by the United Cigar Manufacturers, S. B. Heddles reports the sale of a 300 case lot of 1931 binder stock and 300 cases of 1931 fillers, the latter to H. W. Child. George Rummell has disposed of 260 cases of '91 goods and purchased a 57 case lot of growers. The sales of L. B. Carle & Son for the week aggregate about 100 cases. These transactions seem to indicate an improved condition in the cured leaf market.

Weather Continues Favorable. The weather conditions remain decidedly favorable to the curing out of the new crop which is now safely past any danger of shed damage. A report from Windsor, Wisconsin, records a few sales in the 1933 crop at prices ranging from 7 to 8 1/2 cents a bundle. George Loomis, buyer for Frank Balnes has bought the crop of August Zachariah and Zimmermann for 8 cents in the bundle, also H. Nelson's crop for 7 cents in the bundle.

Vernon Ahead of Rock. From crop statistics gathered by the assessors it appears that for the first time since Vernon became a tobacco growing county it has more acreage than Rock. Returns for the former show 7,417 acres of growing tobacco in 1933, over and against 7,372 acres in Rock. Dane county has more than both these counties combined, reports showing 14,928 acres, or nearly one half of the entire acreage of the state. The increase in the southern growing counties is small, that of Dane and Rock being less than 200 acres for each, while a large additional area is evident in the statistics of the new sections.

New York Reports. Reports from New York indicate continued activity and buoyancy in the leaf market. The chief transactions are in 1932. Pennsylvania and Wisconsin, of which vast quantities are being contracted for. The Wisconsin tobacco so far received shows a percentage of damage which varies considerably. In some of the better packings, leaving the fillers out, not more than from five to six per cent of the tobacco is marked, while in others the damage runs as high as twenty per cent. In the cheaper packings the amount of damage is much greater, reaching in some cases as high as fifty per cent.

PUBLISHES A BOOK OF HIS OWN POEMS ABOUT PEOPLE

E. F. Moran Has Arranged His Verses Into Book Form.

E. F. Moran, the poet of the Ragging Rock, has gathered his many verses into book form in a small book which he proposes to sell and thus perpetuate his memory and also help to advertise Janesville and Rock county. Many of his poems have appeared in the Gazette and some are very worthy of reading. Mr. Moran, is a farmer and he says that his best thoughts come to him when he is at his work. He jots them down on whatever he has handy and later has them written off on a typewriter so they can be easily read. He always has a pocket full of them to show his friends and he can write on any subject that is given him with as much ease as on one of his own.

A supply of grape fruit reached Janesville last week but it is about gone again now. The dealers expect to get in more in the near future. The better quality of the fruit comes high, a shilling apiece is about the ruling price. Later on considerable quantities will be sold. Florida, California and Jamaica are the sources of the grape fruit but at present only the Jamaica product has found its way into Wisconsin.

Tubers Are Higher. Root vegetables have possibly been ruling slightly stronger this week than last. Rutabagoes, turnips, beets, parsnips and carrots are now sold at 20 cents a peck. However, if these vegetables are bought by the bushel, the advance is not noticeable. The keeping qualities of carrots and parsnips are exceptionally good.

Squash at eight pounds for twenty cents continues to sell at a slightly increasing rate. The crook-necks are of rather inferior quality and are little sold. The old time favorite, the Hubbard, has the field practically to itself. Pumpkins are quite plentiful and piles of them in front of the stores show that the market might be more brisk. Cabbages, especially the red variety, does not meet with a very great sale, while cauliflower is now being shipped in to satisfy the demand.

Potatoes. Potatoes have continued to be the most disturbing element of the local market. The tubers have this week been wavering between sixty and sixty-five cents and even higher. Grocers have paid as little as fifty-five cents for good potatoes and on other days have paid up to sixty and higher for stock hardly any better. Storing is now under way and will doubtless prevent a further drop of wholesale prices.

One dealer said yesterday that during the last week, not many inferior grade potatoes had been brought to the city. It is rather the general belief that there is no further danger of a poor keeping, or unsound local supply and that which now remains of the local crop is fairly good. Few carload lots from Milwaukee and Chicago will reach Janesville for some time. Early Ohio, Burbanks and other standard southern potatoes sell for 50 to 55 cents on the track at Milwaukee and Chicago and carload crates are twelve cents the hundred pounds, which amounts to seven cents per bushel. Chicago market authorities generally hold present prices inflated because of the crop failures in Wisconsin, Michigan and northern Illinois. They think that the new year will find Chicago prices still under sixty cents and likely as low as fifty.

The Apple Market. Apples have gone up a bit. Waggers, greenings and other early picked windfalls have advanced to three dollars per barrel and Jonathans from Missouri have also become higher priced. Dealers say that they do not expect a slump in prices either. Present indications are that the crop will rule high as the New England supply is limited and of poor grade. Mississippi valley growers are not over happy at the year's small yield and hold prices up.

Water Cress. Water cress will soon enter the market in large quantities. The light frost will make it tender and crisp and then every grocery will be well stocked with the spicy plant which can be procured in large quantities from a few of the fast flowing creeks in Rock county. Some is now being brought to the city by farmers, but its sale is limited. Bunches of variable size are sold for five cents.

SUGAR BEETS VS. TOBACCO PLANTS

THEY ARE NOT SO HARD ON THE LAND.

CONSIDERED PREFERABLE

Correspondent for Beet Sugar Journal Talks of Rock County Crops.

While traveling through a part of Columbia, Dane, Dodge and Rock counties recently, says a correspondent in the Wisconsin Sugar Beet, the writer had an excellent opportunity to compare the outlook of the tobacco crop and that of sugar beets as grown in the same localities. Then after describing Columbia, Dane and Dodge counties in a few words the correspondent says:

Rock County. The plants were about two feet high when we saw them, they looked very thrifty and when a hailstorm comes or this cold weather continues they will realize a fair crop, but it was in Rock county where we were completely taken back by the advances made in the vicinity of Janesville, among several fields of beets grown by the farmers who had formerly been heavily interested in tobacco culture. Those farmers told me it was a snap working in beets compared with tobacco.

Way, they said, in tobacco you plant the seed in March, in hot beds you have to watch and care for it like raising early spring lambs. It must be watered, nurtured, and kept clean until June, then you have the laborious task of transplanting, taking several men to plant and take off an acre in one day, then if it is dry weather, the plants will die; then must be re-transplanted. They are put in rows and average 18 inches apart in the row; no sooner are they in a fair way to grow when insects and worms attack them, they must be cultivated incessantly, and hosed in and about the plant, and when the stock blossoms each bud must be picked off, this being extra and constant labor. Then the harvest, and the curing. Why, says one farmer, I would rather take care of ten acres of sugar beets than five of tobacco and from the outlook here we feel that the beet crop will far exceed the tobacco, and with less expenditure of labor, but let me tell you readers of the sugar beet, every field of beets that is raised in Rock county by an old tobacco grower is spanking clean of weeds. The Rock county farmers know how to get the best results, in beets as well as in tobacco, and they will have it this fall when they ship their sugar beets to the plant of the Wisconsin Sugar company.

Much Interest. There is very much interest manifested in the vicinity of Janesville, over the crop this year, and it may not be in the far distant future when Janesville will have a plant of its own, and then the farmers will realize that they can get the by-product for their stock, and reap all the benefits with but little additional cost. The pulp is of great value for feeding purposes, and as many of them are interested in dairying, they will find the pulp to be worth a great deal to them in feeding cows and stock.

One Field. Among the beet fields in and about Janesville, that are worthy of mention is a ten-acre lot on the John Decker farm. They are as fine a crop as can be found anywhere, and Mr. Decker will realize a handsome sum for his first experiment in the culture of the beet. The work on the field was all done by the 14th of July. The work of harvesting these beets commences early in October and can be taken up at a time when the farmers as a rule are over the busy season.

There are over 1,100 acres raised in Rock and Walworth counties this year for the Wisconsin Sugar company, and from every locality, comes the reports that they promise an excellent yield.

While the wheat season and cool weather gave the corn a severe setback, the sugar beet kept right on flourishing, and it can be safely said that one year with another the sugar beet is a safe crop to plant.

Wall street expects great results from the forthcoming inspection tour of the New York Central lines to be made by W. K. Vanderbilt, President Newman and other directors. Announcement that the inspection trip is to begin at once has revived the old story of a Vanderbilt financial plan and it is said that this trip will determine finally whether a reorganization shall be attempted and how soon. Directors of the New York Central say no such proposition has yet been proposed, but bankers say it is nearly matured and may be made public as soon as the status of the Northern Securities company shall have been definitely established.

Even Talks.

"Inman's stirring adventure in the northern wilderness reminds me of the fact that bears have always played a prominent part in the world's history," said Passenger Agent A. N. Gleason. "It was really a bear, you know, that Israel Putnam found in the cave. Then, of course, we all remember the two bears that were sent to devour the forty-two children who mocked Elijah for being bald-headed. (No; this was the first Elijah—not Elijah Dowie.)

"I told my little son this story about the bears that were sent to revenge the prophet, and for fear that the moral might be overlooked, I warned him never to revile a bald-headed man because he might accidentally strike one that had a stand-in with the All Powerful.

"When I had finished he looked me over rather critically and remarked: 'Pa, you've got quite a growth of hair on top of your head, haven't you?'

Three Color Printing...

The beautiful color plates you notice in the magazines and printed matter of various sorts are certainly as near art as any produced in the printing line. The work has the appearance of being difficult to perform—and this is true—yet the Printing Department of the Gazette is producing some of this 3 color plate printing in an equal manner with the best printing plants in the cities.

The explanation of the process is very interesting and the work itself is worth the time of those who watch the development of the printers art. Chas. L. Mohr, Superintendent of the Gazette Dept. of Printing will be pleased to explain all about fine printing to those interested.

BIG GAMES COME NEXT SATURDAY

Pennsylvania is Down and Out in the East—Western Outlook is Very Good.

Saturday's surprises on the football field came in both east and west. Pennsylvania went down and out under the terrific hammering it received from Columbia and all hopes of being the premier eleven of the east this year has gone into the hazy background of the past. Yale beat the soldiers at West Point and went home with a smile on its face while Princeton and Harvard played football for the first time this year and showed what they really could do. Wisconsin on the Chicago papers give the palm already to Michigan without any consideration of Wisconsin, Chicago, or Minnesota claims, except to state that Minnesota is probably second best and Wisconsin, Chicago Northwestern and Illinois ranking next.

Look to Saturday
It would seem as though very few of the big teams tried to make big scores Saturday. Michigan was content with forty-one points and Minnesota was satisfied with forty-six points against Illinois that Michigan beat seventy-eight to nothing and Wisconsin eighty-seven to nothing. Wisconsin also was content to play its substitutes and allow Knox to score on them making the final 54 to 6. Illinois went down before the reorganized Chicago team which puts up the midway stock somewhat.

With reference to the Chicago-Wisconsin game at Madison this week, the statements of Assistant Coach Koehler of Chicago, who watched the game against Knox, are significant:

The Statement
"Wisconsin should have run up a score of about 100 instead of 54. The Wisconsin men made twelve fumbles during the game, several of them costly. Despite this, however, Wisconsin has a mighty strong team and a fast team. Its line and Chicago's, I believe, are pretty well matched. I am inclined to think, in fact, that the lines are strong enough to prevent either sides from scoring. I think if we win, and I think we will, it will be on a long run, such as that of Eckersall on Saturday. In the matter of individual men we are ahead of them in only two positions, quarter and full back."

The talk which has been current about Wisconsin's having a green team seems out of place when one comes to study the men individually.

Line-up
In the line Bush and Abbott at end are veterans of first quality. Chicago will have difficulty in attempting end runs. Findlay, at tackle, was at Wisconsin last year. Washburn, at the other tackle, is an old University of Missouri player. Bertke and Chamberlain, at guard, are both veterans. Kemp, the center, has been a "sub" for three years. Fogg was at quarter last year, and his game playing against Michigan is still remembered in Chicago. Vanderboom is a veteran half back. Bain, the other half, is an Indian, who has played on Kansas university, the Haskell team, and the Carlisle team. A full back only has been a vacancy hard to fill. Peterson and Wraetz are the candidates. Thus Wisconsin has nine veterans against Chicago's seven.

The teams are well matched, however, and the chances look to be about even.

Art Waiting
Saturday next is really the crucial football day in the west. Chicago meets Wisconsin at Madison and Minnesota goes to Ann Arbor to meet Michigan. If the Gophers can beat the Wolverines and the Badgers the Old Kink's men all will be merry. Wisconsin can then go to Ann Arbor with some feeling of confidence and without doubt take the dauntless followers of the maize and blue into camp. Then would come the final game of the season on Thanksgiving day for Wisconsin at Madison with the Gophers for her opponents. Wisconsin always wins from this team on its home grounds and the prospects would be bright for the cardinal coming out on top.

So live that it will not take the latter part of your life to blot out the first part of your existence. Rocky Mountain Tea will do the business. 35 cents. Smith's Pharmacy.

SCOPE OF THE CHILD LABOR LAW

Attorney General Decides Point for Jewish Training School.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 26.—In response to a request from State Factory Inspector Davies, Attorney General Hamlin has given an opinion concerning the scope of the provision of the new child labor law, which authorizes school superintendents to issue age and school attendance certificates to pupils. The act is applicable to parochial and private schools as well as to the public schools, but there was some question as to whether the authority granted under it extended to such schools as the Jewish training school of Chicago. The opinion of the attorney general is to the effect that it does and that the superintendent of this school can issue the certificates.

TOWN IS ENDANGERED BY FIRE

SIGNS BOND TO REFUND MONEY

King's Pharmacy and Peoples Drug Co., Takes All Risk of Mi-o-na Curing Dyspepsia and Building Up Flesh.

It is an easy thing for medicine to be advertised as guaranteeing cure, money refunded, etc., or have the druggist say, "Well, yes, if it does not help we will return your money," but if the medicine does not give satisfaction and the customer goes back to the dealer, the probability is that he has forgotten what no said and there is a question about making the refund.

King's Pharmacy and Peoples Drug Co., in a very business like way overcomes this trouble in a clear and definite manner, by giving the following bond with every package of Mi-o-na that they sell.

GUARANTEE BOND.
We hereby agree to refund the price paid for Mi-o-na if the purchaser tells us that it has not increased flesh and gives freedom from stomach troubles.
King's Pharmacy & People's Drug Co.

If you want your money back they will return it to you if you can tell them that Mi-o-na has not increased flesh and given freedom from stomach troubles.

It is an unusual remedy that can be sold in this way, but Mi-o-na is a remarkable combination of disintegrating elements combined with agents that regulate the digestive organs and restore health and strength.

Remember that if Mi-o-na does not do all that is claimed for it, your money is returned to you by King's Pharmacy and Peoples Drug Co., in accordance with this bond.

LAW DECISIONS FOR LAYMEN

Recent Court Rulings That Will Interest the Busy Reader Very Much.

In an action against an officer for damages for false imprisonment, the Supreme court of Michigan has recently held that where an officer had under arrest two prisoners who were strangers to him, and it was long after dark and he had a considerable distance to go with them, and there was nothing in his conduct to indicate malice, no additional damages should have been given because the prisoners were handcuffed.

Boycott.
It is well settled that all sorts of laborers may lawfully combine and form what are known as "labor unions," for their mutual benefit, and they may use all lawful means to promote their own interests, being careful in so doing not to infringe on the rights of others. But attempts by members of a labor union to compel an employer to accede to the demands of the union as to the mode of doing his business by persuading or inducing others not to deal with him is unlawful, and will be enjoined. 65 Atlantic Rep. (New Jersey, Judge Pitney,) 465.

Religious Societies.
An incorporated religious society having no capital stock, the powers of which relating to business and property are required by its charter to be exercised by a board of trustees, only two-thirds of whom need to be members of the church, and whose action may be rejected by the congregation, and who have nothing to do with matters of discipline or expulsion, is not liable for damages for the expulsion of a member of the congregation. 96 Northwestern Rep. (South Dakota, Judge Fuller,) 92.

Physicians.
It is not competent to prove by a physician the communication made to him by his patient in that relation but such physician may testify as to facts which are within his knowledge independent of such communication. He may testify as to the condition and state of health of his patient, as well as the treatment by him prescribed for his patient. 6 Northwestern Rep. (Ohio, Judge Burket,) 4.

Railroads.

Plaintiff, brought suit against a railway company charging it with negligence in not exercising proper and adequate care and vigilance in guarding and protecting him, while he was its passenger, against mob violence, and in attempting to run its car through a mob without warning him of the dangers to which he was being exposed, in consequence of which he sustained injuries. Held, that in approaching any place of danger—as in attempting, to run its cars through a mob, it is the duty of a common carrier to use the utmost care to protect its passengers from injury. 55 Atlantic Rep. (Rhode Island, Judge Dubois,) 490.

That passengers were afforded an opportunity to purchase tickets at regular ticket offices before boarding trains, did not authorize a railroad to charge passengers boarding train without tickets as excess fare of 25 cents over the maximum rate fixed by statute. 45 Southeastern Rep. (South Carolina, Judge Gary,) 196.

Infringement of Trade Mark.
In Wrisley Co. vs. Iowa Soap Co., it appeared that the plaintiff had established a large and lucrative trade in a superior brand of soap which it called and marked "Old Country Soap." The defendant made and sold a soap which it called and branded "Our Country Soap." The packages of the two manufacturers were of the same size and shape, but the dress of the defendant's product bore the defendant's name and its place of manufacture and was so unlike that of the plaintiff that it was not likely to deceive a common purchaser who exercised ordinary care. It was held that the use of the term "Our Country" as a brand or name for the soap under these circumstances did not constitute unfair competition. 122 Federal Rep. 796.

Validity.

One against whom a criminal prosecution was pending induced, for the purpose of defeating the proceedings, the prosecutrix to accompany him to a certain place, where he deposited with a third person a certain sum of money to be paid to the prosecutrix on the dismissal of the criminal charge. Subsequently he was released. Held, that the deposit, being for the purpose of defeating a regular proceeding in court was against public policy, and he could not secure the aid of the court to recover it. 73 Pacific Rep. (Washington,) 374.

Gambling Debt.

A statute declares that all notes, bills or other securities, the consideration for which shall be money or other things of value won by playing at any unlawful game, shall be void as between the parties and all others, except holders in good faith without notice. Held, that a check issued for money advanced for the purpose of gambling, where the payee wins the money is void between the parties, without regard to whether the money is won before or after its advancement. 73 Pacific Rep. (Washington, Judge Mount,) 351.

Murder.

The right of self defense being founded on necessity, the party who would invoke it must avoid the attack, if he can do so without danger to himself. But where an assault precipitated without provocation is such as to indicate to reasonable mind acting on appearances that the danger of life or the infliction of great bodily harm is imminent, the party assailed is justified in killing the aggressor if necessary, and need not retreat or resort to expellents less violent. 72 Pacific Rep. (Oregon, Judge Wolverton,) 333.

Bargain Counters.
Miss Carrie Loose, of Richmond, Va., has brought suit against a dry goods store for $5,000 damages for a broken leg. It seems that the injury was received in a crush at a bargain counter, whither she had gone, no doubt in search of a greatly reduced piece of ribbon. She claims that the store should have regulated the inflow of customer, but we fear any attempted regulation of this sort would be greatly resented by womankind and would perhaps result in many suits. The court will doubtless apply the rule of caveat emptor, or let the purchaser beware. (Law Notes.)

You will never have crows' feet, if you take A. B. C. Family Tea, for it smooths out the lines that creep about one's face, and fills up the hollow price. 25c a package. Badger Drug Co.

THE HINT AND THE THREAT.

Harper's Weekly enjoyed the reputation, for many years before it met with financial disaster, of knowing how to manage the national government, better than any administration that was ever entrusted with the responsibility. While claiming to be republican, it was the leader in what was known as the "mugwump" movement.

About three years ago the publication was on the verge of bankruptcy. It was finally reorganized with J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., as financial backers and for a time the policy of the paper was changed and it became consistent and less dictatorial. It is a well known fact that President Roosevelt has antagonized Wall Street, and that Morgan and his associates are opposed to his policy as well as to his selection.

Harper's Weekly is today the mouthpiece of this opposition, and in a late issue, a column was devoted to an editorial criticizing the president and the administration. After speaking of the summer vacation, and the president's return to the White house, and outlining the policy that he should pursue concerning trusts and combines, the editorial closes with the following implied threat:

"When Mr. Roosevelt shall next transfer his residence from Washington to Oyster Bay, the Republican national convention will have been held, and its nomination for the presidency will have been made. He has at least eight months before him in which to improve, or to retain, or fatally to impair, his present excellent chance of winning the nomination. Were the national convention to be held next week he would undoubtedly be the nominee, and it is, on the face of things, improbable that the situation will have changed so materially before June, 1904, that the nomination will then be withheld from him. But, while we still expect to see Mr. Roosevelt the candidate of his party, we must recognize that the election of a Republican nominee is by no means so inevitable as it looked a year ago. The prosperity which, however caused, was unquestionably witnessed under the McKinley administration, has ceased to be a universal and conspicuous phenomenon. Not only must disappointment and despondency be predicated of the large class of small investors, to whom we have previously referred, but in most of the great urban centers there is certain to be acute and widespread suffering this winter, owing to the prolonged and, for the present, seeming irremediable dispute between capital and labor in the building trades. If it be true that the political party in power is instinctively credited, to a certain extent, with the generation or maintenance of the national well-being, it is equally true that national adversity, or ominous indications of a drift thereto, are apt to be imputed to the party responsible for legislation. If things shall go on for the next twelve months as they have gone this summer the Democracy will have at least a chance of electing its nominee for the Presidency; provided, of course, that nominee shall be a man calculated to ally, instead of aggravate, popular uneasiness and apprehension."

The republican party can not afford to ignore the fact that the moneyed interests of Wall Street are not in sympathy with the administration, and it is safe to assume that if Cleveland should be the democratic nominee for president in 1904, that the Wall Street influence would be with him for all it is worth. This would mean an issue of so much importance that the family quarrel now going on in Wisconsin would assume the magnitude of a first class farce, and the party would realize the necessity of getting together for protection.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH WALL STREET

The following editorial from "The Financier" sizes up the situation so completely, that it is well worth reading and digesting.

Wall Street, to answer the generally propounded query quoted above is all right. It has been going along in the even tenor of its way taking whatever cash may have been offered it, and it will be ready to repeat the operation as soon as it can again persuade people that wealth comes without effort, that fortunes grow over night, that anybody can get rich quick if he has sufficient nerve to risk everything against nothing, and that the source of opulence is found in speculation, rather than honest endeavor.

How can Wall Street be otherwise than "all right?" Isn't the rest of the country—the speculative portion of course—is meant in this connection—rather badly crippled? The money that has poured into the Street for a year or more hasn't gone back to its original owners, so far as can be learned, and there is small prospect that it will, for the present at least. We do not see that Wall Street has grounds for complaint. The oft repeated question, therefore, ought to be revised to read: "What's the matter with those who deal in Wall St. Here we strike a right subject for investigation. The amateur speculators have played the game and lost. Deceived on all sides they have, in the aggregate, parted with millions of hard earned dollars. High finance coupled with low morality, tells the story. Ideals as well as prices have been shattered. There was a grim bit of humor in the disclosure last week that one of the dummy incorporators of the United States Shipbuilding Trust had acted in a similar capacity for the late lamented Five Hundred and Twenty percent. Miller syndicate, but the young man from whom the information was wrung, did not, to his everlasting credit, he it said, seem to find anything in the fact to laugh at. His perception was clearer than that of the high priced legal gentlemen who were bailing him.

To return to this subject of Wall Street's present condition, the only moral that can be drawn is that it is unwise to play another man's game. Let it be written down also, in contradiction to the usually accepted belief, that the characters of some conspicuous figures in recent financial history have not been lost. Rather they have only been exposed. One may conceal for the time being that which he does not possess, but he cannot lose anything which he never had. And that is about all that is the matter with Wall Street now. Exposure is the word that answers the question in full.

Dowie left his host and bade New York farewell to go to Boston and see Mrs. Elljah off for a trip to far off Australia. There goes some of the Zionists' money they gave so freely.

Wholesale charges of graft are prevalent in Des Moines and the police department are suspected. Chicago's example is being followed.

Janesville foot ball players seem to be able to play the game on the gridiron pretty well this year. Waukesha six to nothing. Well.

Beloit once more mourns a black eye this week given by Minnesota.

Chicago has another strike. This time the Dutchmen suffer for their supply of sausage is threatened.

It took a private car to take Dowie and his family to Boston.

PRES COMMENT.

Boston Globe: Captain Kidd, had he lived a little later, might have been a financier instead of a pirate.

Philadelphia North American: It was quite a spectacle, to see those British redcoats at Bunker Hill, but then Boston is a great place for spectacles.

Chicago News: Now that General Miles has become the head of an oil company he can exercise his knowledge of strategy in trying to keep out of range of the Rockefeller's.

Chicago Record Herald: The Shah of Persia still has some very old fashioned notions. For: one thing he insists on doing his own official poisoning when he wishes to put any of his loving subjects out of the way. Some crowned heads are so fussy over these things.

Atlanta Journal: The leading question in New York is whether Dowie will convert Tammany or Tammany convert Dowie. The inhabitants will doubtless find cause for rejoicing in either event.

Washington Times: It is alleged in a pending divorce case that the fair defendant has been kissed by representatives of the army, navy and the light house service. We had begun to fear that this practice suffered a decline since the retirement of Hobson.

New York Telegram: Senator Hanna says Mr. Cleveland is greater than his time. Well, we'll keep him around until time catches up. The former president never was good at handing out compliments, maybe he will send the senator a mess of fish.

Potoskey (Mich.) Lyre: The wolf could be kept away from the door by a great many poets if they would call him in and start to read some of their poetry to him.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Now that Mr. Cleveland has made his speech at Chicago there is nothing further to keep Mr. Bryan from starting on that contemplated trip to Europe. half head

PARENTS WILL GET REPORTS

FROM DISTRICT SCHOOLS THIS YEAR—ACCURATE RECORD.

CONDITIONS GENERALLY GOOD

Superintendent Antisdal Returned Last Week from Towns of Turtle and Rock.

Next Saturday examinations will be held at the High school for district teachers' certificates. The tests will be conducted by Superintendent Antisdal and Hemmingsway representing the two districts in Rock county. Mr. Hemmingsway having control of the first district and Mr. Antisdal the second.

Fifteen From Second District. From the second district about fifteen teachers will take examinations. All three grades will be represented but the majority will take examinations for the third grade certificates. There will be two to take the first grade tests and a number who will be given examinations in the studies they are obliged to make up.

Returned From Inspection. Superintendent Antisdal has 101 teachers in his district this year, and this embraces ten townships. He returned last Saturday from an extended trip of inspection in the towns of Rock and Turtle. He says that prospects are bright for the coming year and that things have gone well so far.

Report Cards For Pupils. A new system is being introduced this fall and that is of having regular report cards for every pupil. Teachers in a number of towns have already received the cards and they will all be furnished the necessary number in the near future. The plan of having monthly report cards helps the parents in keeping track of the work done by the children and incites interest and an endeavor to excel on the part of the scholar.

At the examination Saturday, there will be about twenty-five teachers from Supt. Hemmingsway's district, who have been conditioned and must pass in certain branches before they will receive their certificates unconditionally. Then there will be from five to fifteen teachers who will take examinations for the third, second and first grade certificates. Mr. Hemmingsway has 106 teachers under his care and these are in charge of his educational work in ten townships.

Rock and Dane county are the only two in the state having two school districts, which speaks well for the population and trend of the people for better and wider education.

CRYSTAL WEDDING DULY CELEBRATED

William Pratt's Home at Park Avenue Was the Scene of Much Merry Making.

On Saturday evening last, the Degree of Honor lodge of the A. O. U. W. surprised Mr. and Mrs. William Pratt at their home, No. 7 Home Park avenue, and helped them celebrate the fifteenth anniversary of their marriage. The evening was delightfully spent at elench and Mr. Ed. Klenow carried off the first prize and George Pratt the booby. Lunch was served from baskets brought by the unexpected guests and several very choice pieces of crystal ware were left as a remembrance of the event celebrated by the members of the order.

A BIKE THIEF IN JANESVILLE

Took Architect Hilton's Wheel From in Front of Office—No Trace Yet Found.

A bicycle belonging to Architect Hilton was stolen from the sidewalk in front of his office several days ago and although the affair has been kept quiet in hopes of recovering the bike no trace of the machine has been found. Last Wednesday Mr. Hilton rode down to his office and left the wheel near the door. He was gone but a few minutes when he returned to the street it was gone, so he believes that the thief must have been in the vicinity when he entered the building.

ENTERTAINED THE VISITING CLASS

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark Were Hosts at Supper Saturday Evening.

Each year the class in mineralogy take frequent trips to the ore bearing portions of the state to thoroughly investigate the manner ores are mined and the grade of ores found. Last Saturday a party of fifteen under the leadership of Prof. Hobbs of the university arrived in the city and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Clark at supper while waiting for the train for Madison. Mr. and Mrs. Clark were assisted in entertaining their guests by Miss Flora Richter and Miss Elva Crawford. Mr. Arthur Clark was a member of the party. The party spent three days in the lead and zinc regions about Mineral Point and went down into many of the shafts that have been sunk recently and those which remain of the early miners of bygone days.

Meet Tuesday: There will be a regular meeting of the W. R. C. Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. A full attendance is requested as important business is to be transacted.

LAY CEMENT FOUNDATIONS SOON AS DEPTH IS REACHED

Another New Pump Is Put at Work to Help the Work.

Two big wooden frames have been built at the Ford mill and will be used to form the cement foundations. They are as large as small houses and are very heavy. They will be lowered into the pit as soon as the required depth has been reached. This will now be done in the near future, provided there are no further interruptions as about a foot and a half only remains to be dug. The new pump which was being set up last week was going this morning and the water was the lowest in the lower part that it has been for some time. All the men are now at work digging and it is possible the concrete foundations will be down before the first severe cold weather when work will have to come to a stop.

Within Fire Limits: The erection of a frame building within the fire limits on High street was stopped by Chief Klein Saturday.

HER DEMISE A TRAGEDY

STELLA PEARL, FIFTEEN YEARS OLD, DRANK SILVER POLISH.

SEEKING TO END HER LIFE

A Week Ago Last Saturday, Because She Could Not Go to Dance—Passed Away Last Night.

Because her father refused to grant her permission to attend a dance on the evening of Saturday, October 17, handsome, sunny-tempered Stella Pearl, who lived with her parents on the Evansville road five miles from Janesville, went to her room and drank half of the contents of a two-ounce bottle of liquid silver polish. Death from heart failure came to her suddenly at half past six last evening.

Why Father Refused

Mr. and Mrs. William Pearl are almost prostrated with grief over their daughter's terrible fate. The father refused permission to go to the dance for wise and good reasons and no more was thought of the incident at the time. On Sunday, however, the mother and father both noticed that the daughter seemed unwell but she made no complaint. On Monday morning the mother insisted something was wrong and the daughter finally broke down and made a full confession.

It Was Her Birthday

She acknowledged that she intended to take her life. The day in question was her fifteenth birthday and she thought it unreasonable in her father not to allow her to go to the dance. Dr. William Judd was summoned as soon as the facts were learned. He attended her several days following and she appeared to be improving steadily. Her throat, which was in a dangerous condition from the effects of the poison, had been entirely healed and her ultimate recovery was hoped for.

Death Comes Suddenly

The poison, however, had permeated her entire system during the thirty or more hours that elapsed before her parents became aware of her condition and the physician expressed very grave doubts as to his success even while he labored with her and seemed to be improving. No change had been noticed in her condition yesterday afternoon when she suddenly gave some unintelligible exclamation and fell back dead.

Some Deadly Poison

The silver-polish had been purchased of some traveling vender. The mixture contained some deadly poison. Dr. Judd has not made a test as yet, but believes that it was cyanide of potassium. A single crystal of this deadly drug is sufficient to kill any ordinary small animal almost instantly. Whatever the poison, it was of course greatly diluted in the polish.

Mild Tempered Girl

The act of the young girl in taking the poison is still inexplicable to friends and relatives. She was in excellent health, never having had a sick day in her life, and her temper was always mild and sweet. Within the memory of her parents she had never given way to a fit of anger. She was going to the dance without an escort, had the permission not been withheld, as it was held in a far-house not far from her home.

A Large Family

The funeral will be held from the home at half-past two o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Rev. Henderson officiating. Interment will be made at Oak Hill. Besides the father and mother, the deceased is survived by two brothers and three sisters. One of the brothers resides in Beloit. The many friends of the family in Rock county will sympathize with them in this terrible affliction.

Sew All Day: The Ladies of the Presbyterial Aid society will meet tomorrow in the church parlors for their annual sewing bee for their fair. The doors will be opened at nine and those who purpose staying all day are requested to bring their own lunch.

Humane Society: A special meeting of the Janesville Humane society will be held at the residence of Mrs. E. F. Woods Tuesday evening, Oct. 27. A full attendance is requested as important business will be transacted. By order of the president, E. B. Helmsstreet.

SYNOPSIS.

PART I.—Three rogues, Hayle, Kitwater and Codd, meet at Singapore. After two days of existence of hidden treasure at Sengkor-Wat—old Burmese ruins near Chinese border. Hayle only half believes account, but nevertheless agrees to join in search.

PART II.—Reaching Sengkor-Wat, the men make their way through the ancient streets and toward the once splendid palace. Toward dusk after a most tedious search they come upon a most interesting underground vault, in which are discovered great quantities of bar gold and uncut rubies and sapphires. Hayle, Kitwater and Codd make their way out of the vault, and find their two Burmese servants slain and horribly mutilated. Chinese fanatics, during the night, have taken treasure and stolen away into the jungle.

PART III.—Utterly exhausted and unconscious, Hayle is found by English officers near frontier station of Nampung. As soon as able he leaves for Hongkong and thence to England.

PART IV.—Two months later another steamer at Nampung, while out on a hunt across Kitwater and Codd. Kitwater explains they were traders who had fallen into hands of Chinese who had taken them to a rich native patron. After recovering somewhat from effects of exposure and tortures they set off in pursuit of Hayle.

CHAPTER I.—George Fairfax relates how he became a detective in Australia and finally came to open up an office in London.

CHAPTER II.—Kitwater and Codd try to secure Fairfax's services. They represent themselves as missionaries returned from China, where they had been turned over to them on his death a great fortune which was stolen by a guest (Hayle) at the mission. Fairfax almost ends in not to take case.

CHAPTER III.—Miss Kitwater calls on Fairfax in behalf of her uncle and succeeds in persuading him to take up the work. He is told by her that her uncle, a former clerk who answers to the name of George Fairfax, has been killed by accident. Fairfax almost comes upon Hayle, but the latter escapes into a cab. Fairfax follows in close pursuit, and a sharp chase the forward cab comes to a stop, but it is empty.

CHAPTER IV.—After many persistent inquiries Fairfax locates Hayle in Foxwell's hotel, but misses him. He is only a few minutes. Subordinate detectives are located at the various stations, and one of them, Dickson, manages to trace Hayle to Paris.

CHAPTER V.—Fairfax takes advantage of necessary day to go Sunday at the Foxwell home and becomes very much impressed by the charms of Miss Kitwater. He learns that it is she upon whom Kitwater is drawing for funds for the pursuit of Hayle.

CHAPTER VI.—In Paris Fairfax enlists cooperation of Leglossie, the famous French detective, through whom he discovers whereabouts of Hayle. Much to the surprise of Fairfax Hayle presents himself.

Feeling that I must have other assistance, I set off for my old friend Leglossie's residence. I had the good fortune to meet him by the concierge's lodge, and we ascended the stairs to his rooms together.

"I have come to ask you to do me a favor," I said, when we were seated in his sitting-room.

"A thousand favors, if you wish, cher ami," the old fellow replied.

"Tell me how I can have the pleasure of serving you."

"I want you to lend me one of your men for a few days," I said. "I have to send my own man back to England, and I am afraid the gentleman we were discussing last night may give me the slip in the meantime if I'm not careful."

"The better to enable him to appreciate the position, I furnished him with a brief summary of the case upon which I was engaged."

"And so you are to dine with your prisoner to-night?" he remarked, with one of his quiet chuckles.

"That is droll—very droll. It is very good for you that it is at such a place, or I should have my doubts as to the rascal's intentions. But you are well able to take care of yourself, my friend; that I know."

"And the man?"

"You shall have him. You shall have half a dozen if you like. I am only too pleased to be able to help in such a good work. You shall have Pierre Lepallard, my right-hand. I cannot give you a better. Nothing escapes Pierre, and he is discreet. Oh, yes, my friend, he is discreet. He will not obtrude himself, but he will know all that your friend does, to whom he speaks, what he said to him, and sometimes even what he intends doing before he does it."

"In that case he is just the man for me," I replied. "I am exceedingly obliged to you for your consideration courtesy. Some day I may be able to repay it."

Within half an hour the estimable Lepallard had been made acquainted with his duties, and within an hour a ragged tattered man of an hour was selling matches on the opposite side of the road to that on which Hayle's apartments were situated.

I reached the restaurant at which we were to dine that evening punctually to the moment, only to find that Hayle had not yet arrived. For a minute I was tempted to wonder whether he had given me the slip again, but while the thought was passing through my mind a cab drove up, and the gentleman himself alighted.

"I must beg your pardon for keeping you waiting," he said, apologetically. "As your host I should have been here first. That would have been the case had I not been detained at the last moment by an old friend. Pray forgive me!"

I consented to do so, and we entered the restaurant together.

I discovered that he had already engaged a table, arranged the menu, and despatched the wines. We accordingly sat down, and the strangest meal of which I had ever partaken commenced. Less than a week before the man sitting in front of me had endeavored to bring about my destruction; now he was my host, and to all outward appearances my friend as well. I found him a most agreeable companion, a witty conversationalist, and a born raconteur.

He seemed to have visited every part of the known globe; had been a sailor, a revolutionist in South America, a blackbird in the Pacific, had seen something of what he called the "pig-tail trade" to Borneo, some very queer life in India, that is to say, in the comparatively unknown native states, and had come within an ace of having been shot by the French during the war in Madagascar.

"In point of fact," he said, "I may say that I have traveled from Dan to Beersheba, and, until I struck this present vein of good fortune, had found all barren. Some day, if I can summon up sufficient courage, I shall fit out an expedition and return to the place whence the stones came, and get some more, but not just at present. Events have been a little too exciting there of late to let us consider it a healthy country. By the way, have you heard from our friend, Kitwater, yet?"

"I have," I answered, "and his reply is by no means satisfactory."

"I understand you to mean that he will not entertain my offer?"

I nodded my head.

"He must have 'all or nothing,' he declares. That is the wording of the telegram I received."

"Well, he knows his own heart best. The difference is a large one, and will materially affect his income. Will you take extreme de minimis or extreme?"

"Cognac, thank you," I replied, and that was the end of the matter.

During the remainder of the evening not another word was said upon the subject. We chatted upon a variety of topics, but neither the matter of the precious stones nor even Kitwater's name was once mentioned. I could not help fancying, however, that the man was considerably disappointed at the non-acceptance of his preposterous offer. He had made a move on the board, and had lost it. I knew him well enough, however, by this time to feel sure that he had by no means despaired yet of winning the game. Men of Gideon Hayle's stamp are hard to beat.

"Now," he said, when we had smoked our cigarettes, and after he had consulted his watch, "the night is still young. What do you say if we pay a visit to a theater—the Hippodrome, for instance. We might while away an hour there very pleasantly, if you feel so disposed."

I willingly consented, and we accordingly left the restaurant. Once we were in the street Hayle called a cab, gave the man his instructions, and we entered it. Chattering pleasantly, and still smoking, we passed along the brilliantly illuminated boulevards. I bestowed little, if any, attention on the direction in which we were proceeding. Indeed, it would have been difficult to have done so, for never during the evening had Hayle been so agreeable. A more charming companion no man could have desired. It was only on chance I looked out the window that I discovered we were no longer in the gayly-lighted thoroughfares, but were entering another and dingier part of the town.

"What is the matter with the driver?" I asked. "Doesn't he know what he is about? This is not the way to the Hippodrome! He must have misunderstood what you said to him. Shall I hail him and point out his mistake?"

"No, I don't think it is necessary for you to do that," he replied. "Doubtless he will be on the right track in a few minutes. He probably thinks if he gives us a longer ride he will be able to charge a proportionately larger fee at the end. The Parisian cabby is very like his London brother."

He then proceeded to describe to me an exceedingly funny adventure that had befallen him once in Chicago. The recital lasted some minutes, and all the time we were still pursuing our way in a direction exactly opposite to that which I knew we should be following. At last I could stand it no longer.

"The man's obviously an idiot," I said, "and I am going to tell him so."

"I shouldn't do that, Mr. Fairfax," said Hayle, in a different voice to that which he had previously addressed me.

"I had my own reasons for not telling you before, but the matter has already been arranged. The man is only carrying out my instructions."

"What do you mean by already arranged?" I asked, not without some alarm.

"I mean that you are my prisoner, Mr. Fairfax," he said. "You see, you are rather a difficult person to deal with, if I may pay you such a compliment, and one has to adopt heroic measures in order to cope with you."

"Then you have been humbugging me all this time," I cried; "and you've let the cat out of the bag a little too soon. I think I'll bid you good-by."

I was about to rise from my seat and open the door, but he stopped me. In his hand he held a revolver, the muzzle of which was in unpleasant proximity to my head.

"I must ask you to be good enough to sit down," he said. "You had better do so, for you cannot help yourself. If you attempt to make a fuss I pledge you my word I shall shoot you, let the consequences be what they may. You know me, and you can see that I am desperate. I wanted to those men was only a bluff. I offered to quiet any suspicious you might have in order that I might get you into my hands. As you can see for yourself, I could not have succeeded better than I have done. I give you my word that you shall not be hurt, provided that you do not attempt to escape or call for help. If you do, then you know exactly what to expect, and you will have only yourself to blame. Be a sensible man, and give in to the inevitable."

He held too many cards for me. I could see at a glance that I was outmaneuvered, and that there was nothing to be gained by a struggle.

Ten minutes later the cab came to a standstill, there was the sound of opening gates, and a moment later we drove into a stone-paved courtyard.

"CHAPTER X.

If you could have traveled the world at that moment, from north to south, and from east to west, I believe you would have found it difficult to discover a man who felt as foolish as I did when I entered the gloomy dwelling-place as Hayle's prisoner. To say that I was mortified by the advantage he had obtained over me would not express my feelings in the least. To think that I, George Fairfax, who had the reputation of being so difficult a man to trick, should have allowed myself to fall into so palpable a trap, seemed sufficiently incredible as to be almost a matter for laughter rather than rage. There was worse, however, behind. Miss Kitwater had been so trustful of my capability for bringing the matter to a successful conclusion, that I dared not imagine what she would think of me now. Which ever way I looked at it, it was obvious that Hayle must score. On the one side, he kept me locked up while he not only made his escape from Paris, but by so doing cut off every chance of my pursuing him afterwards; on the other, he might console himself with the almost certain knowledge that I should be distrustful of those who had put their trust in me. How could it very well be otherwise? I had committed the criminal folly of accepting hospitality from the enemy, and from that moment I should not be seen. The natural supposition would be that I had been bought, and that I was not only taking no further interest in the case, but that I was keeping out of the way of those who did. To add to my misery, I could easily imagine the laugh that would go up on the other side of the channel when the trick that had been played upon me became known. But having so much else to think of, that fact, you may be sure, did not trouble me very much. There were two things, however, about which I was particularly anxious; one was to set myself right with Miss Kitwater, and the other was to get even, at any cost, with Hayle. The first seemed the most difficult.

It must not be supposed that when I had alighted from the carriage I had given up all hope of escape. On the contrary, had it not been for the presence of three burly fellows, who immediately took up their places beside me, I fancy I should have made a dash for liberty. Under the circumstances, however, to have attempted such a thing would have been the height of folly. Five to one, that is to say, if I include the coachman in the number, with the gates closed behind me, were too long odds, and however hard I might have fought, I could not possibly have been successful.

"Perhaps you will be kind enough to step into the house," said Hayle. "The air is cold out here, and I am afraid lest you might take a chill."

Before complying with his order I looked around me once more, to see if there was any chance of escape. But so far as I could see there was not one. I accordingly followed one of my captors into the building, the remainder bringing up the rear.

From what I could see of the house with the help of the light from a solitary candle hanging in a sconce upon the wall, it had once been a handsome building. Now, however, it had fallen sadly to decay. The ceiling of the hall had at one time been richly painted, but now only blurred traces of the design remained. Crossing the hall, my guide opened a door at the further end. In obedience to a request from Hayle, I entered this room, to find myself standing in a fine apartment, so far as size went, but sadly lacking in comfort where its furniture was concerned. There was a bed, a table, three rough chairs, and an entirely inadequate square of carpet upon the floor. I have already said that it was a large room, and when I add that it was lighted only by two candles, which stood upon the table in the center, some idea will be formed of its general dreariness.

"Now, look here, Mr. Hayle," I said, "the time has come for us to have a serious talk together. You know as well as I do that in kidnapping me you are laying yourself out to very serious consequences. If you think that by so doing you are going to prevent me from eventually running you to earth, you are very much mistaken. You have obtained a temporary advantage over me, I will admit; but that advantage will not last. Do not flatter yourself that it will."

"I am not so sure upon that point," said Hayle, lighting a cigarette as he spoke. "If I did not think so I should not have gone to all this trouble and expense. But why make such a fuss about it? You must surely understand, Mr. Fairfax, that your profession necessarily entails risks. This is one of them. You have been paid to become my enemy. I had no personal quarrel with you. You can scarcely blame me, therefore, if I retaliate when I have an opportunity. I don't know what you may think of it, but the mere fact of your dining with me to-night is very likely to go hard with you, so far as your clients are concerned. Would it be a good advertisement for the famous George Fairfax to have it known that, while he was taking his clients' money, he was dining pleasantly in Paris with the man they were paying him to find?"

I laid my trap for you, but I must confess that I had not very much faith in its success. Your experience should have made you more wary. A student of human character, such as you are, should have known that the leopard cannot change his spots, or the tiger his—"

"If you continue in this strain much longer," I said, "I'll endeavor to stop your tongue, whatever it may cost me. Now, either let me out, or get out of the room yourself. I want to see no more of you while I am in this house."

He blew a cloud of smoke, and then answered nonchalantly:

"You had better occupy yourself thanking your stars that you are let off so easily. At one time I was tempted to have you put out of the way altogether. I am not quite certain it wouldn't be safer, even now. It could be done so easily, and no one would be any the wiser. I know two men now in Paris who would gladly run the risk for the sake of the ill-will they bear you. I must think it over."

"Then think it over on the other side of that door," I said, angrily. "Play the same traitorous trick on me as you did on Kitwater and Codd if you like, but you shall not stay in the same room with me now."

My reference to Kitwater and Codd must have touched him on a raw spot, for he winced, and then tried to bluff it off.

"I rather fancy Messrs. Kitwater and Codd will have just such kindly things to say concerning you in the future as they do about me now," he said, as he moved toward the door. "And now I wish you good-by. As I leave Paris almost immediately, I don't suppose I shall have the pleasure of seeing you again. For your own sake I should advise you to be quiet. I might tell you once for all that you can't get out. The door is a stout one, and the windows are exceptionally well barred. The men to whom I have assigned the duty of looking after you are in their way honest, though a little rough. Moreover, they are aware that their own safety depends to a very great extent upon your not getting out. Believe me, if you do not know already, there is nothing like fear for making a good watch-dog. Farewell, friend Fairfax! You have been instrumental in sending a good many men into disrepute; you can tell me later how you like being there yourself."

With that he went out, shutting the door behind him. I heard the key turn in the lock, and a bolt shot at top and bottom. I thereupon went to the window and examined it, only to discover that it was made secure on the outside by large iron bars. So far as I could see, there was no other way of escape from the room.

ing-place as Hayle's prisoner. To say that I was mortified by the advantage he had obtained over me would not express my feelings in the least. To think that I, George Fairfax, who had the reputation of being so difficult a man to trick, should have allowed myself to fall into so palpable a trap, seemed sufficiently incredible as to be almost a matter for laughter rather than rage. There was worse, however, behind. Miss Kitwater had been so trustful of my capability for bringing the matter to a successful conclusion, that I dared not imagine what she would think of me now. Which ever way I looked at it, it was obvious that Hayle must score. On the one side, he kept me locked up while he not only made his escape from Paris, but by so doing cut off every chance of my pursuing him afterwards; on the other, he might console himself with the almost certain knowledge that I should be distrustful of those who had put their trust in me. How could it very well be otherwise? I had committed the criminal folly of accepting hospitality from the enemy, and from that moment I should not be seen. The natural supposition would be that I had been bought, and that I was not only taking no further interest in the case, but that I was keeping out of the way of those who did. To add to my misery, I could easily imagine the laugh that would go up on the other side of the channel when the trick that had been played upon me became known. But having so much else to think of, that fact, you may be sure, did not trouble me very much. There were two things, however, about which I was particularly anxious; one was to set myself right with Miss Kitwater, and the other was to get even, at any cost, with Hayle. The first seemed the most difficult.

It must not be supposed that when I had alighted from the carriage I had given up all hope of escape. On the contrary, had it not been for the presence of three burly fellows, who immediately took up their places beside me, I fancy I should have made a dash for liberty. Under the circumstances, however, to have attempted such a thing would have been the height of folly. Five to one, that is to say, if I include the coachman in the number, with the gates closed behind me, were too long odds, and however hard I might have fought, I could not possibly have been successful.

"Perhaps you will be kind enough to step into the house," said Hayle. "The air is cold out here, and I am afraid lest you might take a chill."

Before complying with his order I looked around me once more, to see if there was any chance of escape. But so far as I could see there was not one. I accordingly followed one of my captors into the building, the remainder bringing up the rear.

From what I could see of the house with the help of the light from a solitary candle hanging in a sconce upon the wall, it had once been a handsome building. Now, however, it had fallen sadly to decay. The ceiling of the hall had at one time been richly painted, but now only blurred traces of the design remained. Crossing the hall, my guide opened a door at the further end. In obedience to a request from Hayle, I entered this room, to find myself standing in a fine apartment, so far as size went, but sadly lacking in comfort where its furniture was concerned. There was a bed, a table, three rough chairs, and an entirely inadequate square of carpet upon the floor. I have already said that it was a large room, and when I add that it was lighted only by two candles, which stood upon the table in the center, some idea will be formed of its general dreariness.

"Now, look here, Mr. Hayle," I said, "the time has come for us to have a serious talk together. You know as well as I do that in kidnapping me you are laying yourself out to very serious consequences. If you think that by so doing you are going to prevent me from eventually running you to earth, you are very much mistaken. You have obtained a temporary advantage over me, I will admit; but that advantage will not last. Do not flatter yourself that it will."

"I am not so sure upon that point," said Hayle, lighting a cigarette as he spoke. "If I did not think so I should not have gone to all this trouble and expense. But why make such a fuss about it? ### CALENDAR AT MYERS GRAND

Oct. 27—Stetson's "Uncle Tom's Cabin."
Oct. 31—Andrew Robson in "Richard Carvel."

Stetson's colossal, dramatic and scenic production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" comes to the Myers Grand on Oct. 27. This production far surpasses that of last season in every particular and will be the best seen here. Special attention has been given to the staging of the piece, and several scenic effects are said to be magnificent. The thrilling ice scene on the Ohio river, St. Clair's plantation with house and garden by moonlight and the cotton fields beyond, and the superb transformation scene at the end of the last act are among the greatest. One of the largest organizations of white and colored artists ever gathered together in one combination has been engaged by Mr. Leon W. Washburn, for this season, everyone of whom was selected for his or her adaptability for the part assigned. A clever quartet of colored singers adds materially to the program by a number of high class specialties. Col. Sawyer's Shetland ponies, trick donkeys, etc., also a prize pack of genuine Shetland bloodhounds, are also with this great combination. The street parade has two bands of music, a number of gorgeous chariots, tableaux wagons and little carriages, built at a large outlay of money, making this the finest free street pageant ever given by any similar company. Taken as a whole, it is an entertainment that can be enjoyed by young and old, and parents should gratify their children in their desire to witness what will be to them a pleasure long to be remembered.

ANDREW ROBSON

London the scene shifts back to Maryland and of course there is to happy reunion. The dramatist, Mr. Rose, is said to have taken few liberties in the adaptation of the play, retaining all of the dramatic elements possible. It is not possible for any dramatic author to retain in his adaptation of a novel all of the dramatic incidents which the author of the story sets down on the pages; for the dramatist the incidents must be consecutive and culminate, otherwise his play would fail. The great success which has attended Mr. Robson's production of this play is proof positive that he is not only an actor of great ability but that the adaptor displayed great discernment in the putting together of the dramatic version of the Churchill story. This is Mr. Robson's third season as the hero in "Richard Carvel" and he is said to have surrounded himself with an exceptionally strong and well balanced company. It includes Lucille Veronika, Priscilla, Knowles, Virginia Milton, Marguerite Gallagher, Adele Mager, Josephine Adams, John W. Bennett, K. K. Newman, Carson Davenport, J. J. Sanborne, H. Connor, Burton Downing, Harry Dunlap, H. B. Carter, A. Bentley, Hal Norcross, William Wallace, George Sanderson and Tom Haddock and Spencer Eaves. Mr. Robson will present "Richard Carvel" at Myers Grand Saturday, Oct. 31.

Richard Carvel.

Back to the days of powdered wigs, velvet knee breeches and swords, snuff boxes and lace handkerchiefs is one taken in "Richard Carvel" the play which Edward E. Rose, so successfully dramatized from Winston Churchill's novel of the same name. For the past two seasons Alexander Robson, one of the best known of the younger stars in the theatrical firmament has been presenting the play himself portraying the hero, "Richard Carvel" is a stirring tale as a novel and had a great vogue. It begins in Maryland at Carvel hall at a period in American history which is decidedly interesting that time just prior to the beginning of the war of the Revolution. With a pretty love story, the play takes its auditor to London showing the machinations of an ambitious father and a wealthy Duke, foisted in their efforts to force beautiful Dorothy Manners into a loveless marriage. The hero of the story, Richard Carvel, is a hot blooded American and there is ample opportunity given him for the display of his patriotism in the defense of the colonists. From

We Offer $1,000

For a Disease Germ That Liquezone Can't Kill.

On every bottle of Liquezone we publish an offer of $1,000 for a germ that it cannot kill. We do that to convince you that liquid oxygen does kill germs.
Any drug that kills germs is a poison to you and it cannot be taken internally. Liquezone alone can kill germs in the body without killing the tissues, too. It is the only way known—the only way one can conceive of—to destroy the cause of any germ disease.

Kills With Oxygen.

Liquezone is simply liquid oxygen—no drugs, no alcohol in it. It is the discovery of Paul, the great German chemist, who spent 20 years on it. His object was to get such an excess of oxygen in staple form into the blood that no germ could live in any membrane or tissue.
Oxygen is life to an animal—the very source of its vitality. It is the essential part of air. Its effects are exhilarating, purifying. It is Nature's greatest tonic. But germs are vegetables, and this excess of oxygen—the very life of an animal—is deadly to vegetable matter. Liquezone charges the blood with such an excess of oxygen that no germ can live where that blood goes. We spend 14 days in making each bottle.

We Paid $100,000

for the American rights to Liquezone—

the highest price ever paid for similar rights on any scientific discovery. Before making the purchase we tested the product for years through physicians in the most difficult germ diseases. We proved that Liquezone does what nothing else in the world can accomplish, and that the results are unvarying.
A discovery that could command such a price is something you should know, if you need it. We are doing our part by supplying the first bottle free. Will you do your part by requesting it?

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquezone kills the germs, wherever they are, and the results are inevitable. By destroying the cause of the trouble, it invariably ends the disease, and forever.

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Monday, October 26, 1863.—The total state tax of 1862 and 1863 will be found below by counties. It will be observed that the tax is much lighter than the present than last year, although it was but moderate then. The tax for paying the current expenses of the state government, and all outstanding claims against the general fund, was last year $150,000. The present year it is only $75,000. The principal item in addition to this is the tax to replenish the war fund, out of which the monthly aid to volunteers' families is paid:
Tax for 1863 Rock $29,000.87.
Tax for 1862 Rock $39,636.00.
(Editor's Note—The seven mill tax on Rock county's valuation of $57,095,270 in 1903 amounts to $399,646.89.)

The Affair At Baxter Springs—Although the accounts we have heretofore published of the unfortunate disaster at Baxter Springs are in the main correct, in order that there may be no misapprehension as to the responsibility of the officers and men in that connection, we have thought that it would not be inappropriate to give a revised account of the whole affair.

For the reasons we have mentioned in another article, Gen. Blunt, instead of waiting until the day he had formerly decided on, started on the evening of Sunday, the 4th inst., accompanied Co. A, 14th Kansas, Co. 1, 3rd Wisconsin, Major Curtis, Henry, Lieutenants, Farr and Tappan, Capt. Tough, the brigade band, and several of the headquarter clerks.
Pond's camp was situated in a ravine so located as not to be visible to a person, more than a few rods distant. While the general was pausing on the brow of the hill, and just as the escort had arrived and were formed in line with the band in front, for the purpose of going into Pond's camp, the general's attention was called to a body of men dressed in United States uniforms, riding out of the timber to the left. At first he was of the opinion that they were Pond's men on parade. But on closer inspection he noticed several officers riding back and forth apparently giving hurried orders. He accordingly ordered the wagons behind, and then rode forward.

As Gen. Blunt and his officers rode forward they were fired into. At this moment Gen. Blunt turned for the purpose of ordering his men to fire, when he noticed them scampering across the prairie to the right of the road leading to the Springs. We will digress one moment to say a word about this inglorious action of our soldiers. We left Gen. Blunt in front of the enemy, alone with his officers, scolding to fly from an enemy as long as he had a man at his command, he turned on a force of from one to two hundred, and drove them with fifteen men.

Co. 1 3d Wisconsin.—Killed—Dennis Smith, J. Burlingame, S. Hart, David Beam, W. Hopper, Henry Pond, John Wright, W. Gifford, R. Murphy, A. Green, F. Gulvin, Clark, P. Van Camp, J. Ganon, L. Rice, W. Gallego, J. Dempsey, A. Brewer, S. Reekes, J. Zayner, A. Woodhall, F. Mossenger.

JANESVILLE WON BY GOOD PLAYING

Practically Has Obtained the Championship of Southern Wisconsin.

Janesville practically won the championship of southern Wisconsin in the fourth game of the season played here last Saturday afternoon against Waukesha. The teams were evenly matched in weight, and about equal in skill, and the fight was fierce from beginning to end, so great was the desire of both teams to win the game.

For the first time this season Janesville was properly backed by the townspeople, and that the team answered to the support and enthusiasm of the crowd was seen when they held Waukesha on their own one-yard line.

Janesville won the toss. Muckleston kicked to Sennett, who advanced the ball fifteen yards before being downed. Janesville was soon forced to punt, Assel fumbled and Ryan fell on the ball. Janesville by five-yard bucks and runs by Millmore, Flaherty, Locke and Sennett carried the ball to Waukesha's four-yard line, where Waukesha held for downs. Waukesha then took the ball and carried it to their own fifty-yard line where they were forced to punt to Sennett who carried the ball ten yards; Janesville advanced the ball to the center of the field where Waukesha secured it on a fumble.

Waukesha then carried the ball to Janesville's one-yard line where they tried to buck Janesville's line and were held for downs.

Flaherty punted out of danger on the first down; Waukesha fumbled and Atwood fell on the ball. Ball changes hands once more and the half closed with Waukesha's ball in the center of the field.

In the second half Carle kicked to R. Davis on Waukesha's fifteen-yard line who was downed after five yards gained. Waukesha carried the ball to the center of field and lost it on downs.

During the half the ball changed hands many times, due to the breaking through of Carle, Atwood and Caldwell who several times caught the men for loss. This work was also reinforced by Ryan and the exceptional work of Millmore, who was in every play.

Finally Janesville got the ball on her own 25-yard line and on the second play Galbraith aided by Atwood and Sennett carried the ball for seventy yards around Waukesha's left end. Two gains of six yards each made by Millmore secured the touch down; Carle kicked goal. Score—Janesville 6 to Waukesha 0.

On the kick-off Roherty was substituted for Sennett, Devins taking right tackle in place of Locke who took full back's position.

Waukesha soon lost the ball on downs after being penalized ten yards for off side play. Locke made several good runs off tackle and the half closed Janesville's ball on the forty-five-yard line.

Janesville's victory was due to a line which Waukesha could not puncture and to the splendid offensive work of the backs and Locke, who were usually good for their five yards.

Janesville's team work was excellent and Flaherty showed good generalship in running the team. In speed and team work Janesville has much improved over the preceding week, every man was in every play and with continued improvement they ought soon to show championship form.

Next Saturday Janesville plays Whitewater here. Waukesha plays Fort Atkinson at the game on the 17th and if Janesville can win she will have attained the supremacy in this part of the state.

MARKET LETTER FROM CHICAGO

Doings on the Stock Exchange This Morning, as Reported for Gazette.

Wheat—Wheat opened strong, 1/4 cent higher for the December and 3/4 for the May. Heavy profit taking around the opening broke the Dec. 81 and 79 1/2 for the May. At the decline the market was well supported by the southwest and big local interests. The market closed with an advance of 1/4 for the Dec. and 3/4 for the May, over Saturday's close. Primary receipts $1,367,055 against 1,875,133 last year. Northwest cars 1,090 against 1,405 last year. The cash wheat seems to be the factor, though not much offering. There was one big lot sold in Chicago today 2c over the December. We look for better prices and would buy wheat on all set-backs.

Corn—Corn opened steady 1-7 to 1/4 higher on firm cables. The big liquidation in wheat first part of the session broke the market 1/2. At the decline the market was fairly supported, both months rallying 1/4. Primary receipts 554,033 against 424,670 a year ago. The world's shipment had a depressing effect on this commodity, but think it is only temporary. The shipping demand continues good. We believe corn will do better and advise buying on all weak spots.

Oats—Oats opened firm on the advance. Heavy offerings by local professionals broke the market in sympathy with wheat and corn. The market had a slight recovery from the low point. Trade was not large. We believe oats should be bought on all breaks.

Provisions—Only a small trade in provisions. Demand is light and very little offering. Firmness due to strength in hogs.

MRS. DUNBAR DIED ON SUNDAY MORNING

The Funeral Will Be Held on Wednesday—Was Well Known in the City.

Entered into rest, Sunday, Oct. 25th, at 6 a. m., at her home in this city, after two years of most painful illness, Mrs. Adelaide Ruger Dunbar, wife of Captain G. W. Dunbar, U. S. A., and mother of Mrs. Alice D. Pence, wife of Capt. W. P. Pence, U. S. A., and of Surgeon A. W. Dunbar, U. S. N. She was, as will be remembered, the daughter of the late Rev. T. J. Ruger, first rector of Trinity church, and of Maria Hutchins Ruger. She was born in Marcellus, N. Y., Dec. 27th, 1839, and came with the family to Janesville in 1844. Her surviving brothers and sisters are Mrs. C. M. R. Pease of Janesville; Major General Thomas H. Ruger, U. S. A., of Stamford, Conn.; Edward Ruger and William Ruger, of this city; Dr. H. H. Ruger, of Devil's Lake, N. D., and Miss Augusta Ruger of Janesville. The funeral will be held at the home on Wednesday, at 2:30 p. m., and the burial will be at Oak Hill cemetery.

Alvah Marden died early Sunday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. F. Austin, after an illness of only a week. He had been a sufferer from rheumatism for many years, and had been confined to his home for the past year, but was tenderly cared for.

Alvah Marden was born in Palermo, Maine, Sept. 28, 1819. His mother, Lucy Soul, was a descendant of the eighth generation of George Soul, who came to America in the Mayflower. In 1848 he was united

SEVENTY MEN ARE STARTING A WAR

Insurgent Forces Land Near Panama and Begin Another Civil War.

Panama, Oct. 26.—A revolutionary force of seventy men, commanded by Federico Lugo and Juan Calcedo, landed on Oct. 11 at Catalina, on the Atlantic coast of Colombia. The insurgents marched some distance into the interior and then returned and proceeded toward Panama.

The cruiser Bogota with 115 soldiers, sailed from this port today for the purpose of dispersing the revolutionists.

The enemy has had to travel through a rough and wild country, and it is not believed that they will be able to stand before the well disciplined troops of Maj. Tascon. Little importance is attached to the movement.

MAD MULLAH GOES AFTER GUN BOAT

Italian Cruiser Bomberds a Camp as Revenge for Former Attack.

Rome, Oct. 26.—The government has received the following information concerning the engagements between the Italian cruiser Lombardina and forces of the Mad Mullah near Illig, in Italian Somaliland:

"Owing to the close watch kept on the Somaliland coast by British and Italian ships the Mad Mullah was unable to get arms and ammunition by sea as previously. He decided to make a desperate attempt to take possession of a point on the coast with 600 men, who, on the 14th inst., attacked the Italian boats and killed several men.

"The following day the Lombardina bombarded the Mullah's position and obliged his followers to retire."

New Paper Starts: The Beloit Daily Journal, the new labor paper, was issued for the first time last Saturday in the Lino City. The stock is held by labor unions and La Follette men in the city and county. R. D. Hogan is in the managing editor's chair.

Mrs. Clara Johnson of Duluth is visiting friends in this city.

Queen Quality... VERY FEW WOMEN

know just how a shoe ought to be fitted to the foot. A shoe should always fit closely around the instep so as to make it impossible for the foot to slip forward and crowd the toes.

It ought to be firmly held right there. The ball of the foot and the toes should have plenty of room and the instep should be grasped as if by a gloved hand.

If you want to see the finer points of scientific FIT, try on a pair of "Queen Quality."

They are anatomically correct, being constructed to the exact outline of the human foot.
